BOOKS RECEIVED

AIR CHARTER REGULATION. By Jaap Kamp. New York: Praeger Publishers, 1976. Pp. 162. $16.50.

Mr. Kemp presents a detailed study of the history and the economic rationale of air charter regulation. The volume includes a survey of consumer attitudes toward and perceptions of advanced booking and charter services, and projects the probable economic effects of various regulatory proposals.

Anatomy of International Law. By J.G. Merrills. London: Sweet & Maxwell, 1976. Pp. 106. $7.55.

The aim of this book is to describe the main elements of international law in their political context, thus providing a broader perspective than textbooks alone provide. The author deals in turn with the formal structure of the international legal system, the functional aspects of international law, and the significance of international law in the community of nations.

Australian Lawyers and Social Change. Edited by David Hambly & John Golding. Sydney: Law Book Company, Ltd., 1976. Pp. 392. $17.50.

This book presents the proceedings of a seminar conducted in 1974 at the Australian National University Law School, the purpose of which was to examine both the responsiveness of Australian law and lawyers to social change and the extent to which they can and should be used to promote such change. Topics that are dealt with include "Lawyers and the Regulation of Economic Activity," "The High Court and the Constitution in a Changing Society," and "Lawyers and Competition Policy."

COLONIAL EMANCIPATION IN THE PACIFIC AND THE CARIBBEAN. By Arnold Leibowitz. New York: Praeger Publishers, 1976. Pp. 221. $20.00.

The author examines how the process of decolonization may, in certain situations, produce the "associated state"—a balance between full sovereignty and the necessity of continued economic and political association with the metropole. The study encompasses several former colonies, illustrating the varied forms that this continued association can take: the Phillipines, Puerto Rico, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, Guam, the Cook Islands, Papua New Guinea, and the West Indies Associated States.

THE DEVELOPING COMMON MARKET. By John Paxton. Boulder, Colorado: Westview Press, 1976. 3rd edition. Pp. 240. $25.00.

This is a comprehensive revision of Mr. Paxton's 1972 edition, providing a discussion of Great Britain's entry into the Common Market.

Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice. Edited by Sir David Lidderdale. London: Butterworths, 1976. 19th edition. Pp. 1156. $50.00.

Since the publication of the first edition in the early 19th century, this text has been the authority on the law, privileges, and proceedings of both Houses of the British Parliament. The 19th edition has been revised to reflect recent changes in Parliamentary procedure, including those occasioned by Britain's entry into the Common Market. Sir David Lidderdale is at present Clerk of the House of Commons.

Essays on International Law in Honour of K. Krishna Rao. Edited by M.K. Nawaz. Leyden: A.W. Sijthoff, 1976. Pp. 362, $27.50.

The late Dr. Rao was the legal advisor of the Government of India's Ministry of External Affairs, and the principal architect of the Indian Society of International Law. This collection of 28 essays was contributed in his honor by such eminent scholars as Philip C. Jessup, Edvard Hambro, Harold Lasswell, Myres McDougal, and Louis Sohn.

International Banking. By Ursel Steuber. Leyden: A.W. Sijthoff, 1976. Pp. 211. $19.50.

This study attempts to clarify the process of internationalization in banking by providing a comparative survey of the foreign operations of major banks in the United States, Great Britain, the Federal Republic of Germany, France, and Japan. The topics covered include banking methods, the extent of activities, and preferred investment regions. The emphasis is on description, rather than analysis.

THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE: AN ANALYSIS OF A FAILURE. By John King Gamble, Jr. & Dana Fischer. Lexington, Mass.: Lexington Books, 1976. Pp. 157. $15.75.

This treatise attempts to present, in the words of its authors, a "detailed empirical view of the Court, utilizing new social science techniques." The authors claim to have made no before-the-fact judgments prior to embarking on their study, and, despite the work's title, they do attribute substantial influence to the Court despite its meager workload. The authors have included an interesting model for predicting the extent to which the Court will be used by various states.

INTERNATIONAL LAW. By D.W. Grieg. London: Butterworths, 1976. 2d edition. Pp. 944. $40.00.

Mr. Grieg's intention is to provide a survey of both the general law of peace and the law of international institutions. While this is a British text, it includes a substantial amount of material on United States practice and on the decisions of United States courts. Less emphasis has been placed on other common law nations and on Continental jurisdictions. The work was designed for use as a text in a detailed introductory course in international law.

Law and Policy of Intergovernmental Commodity Agreements. By Charles R. Johnston, Jr. Dobbs Ferry, New York: Oceana, 1976. 2 volumes, looseleaf. $128.00.

The purpose of this service is to provide a comprehensive analysis of the formats and functions of intergovernmental commodity agreements. It includes a collection of primary resource documents. Supplements will be issed at least semiannually.

THE LAW OF HABEAS CORPUS. By R.J. Sharpe. Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1976. Pp. 254. $22.00.

Dr. Sharpe's work is an examination of the writ of habeas corpus, including both a discussion of the nature of judicial review exercised on habeas corpus and an exploration of its past and potential uses. The study concentrates on the law of England, but includes as well some discussion of the law of the other nations of the Commonwealth.

THE MULTINATIONAL CORPORATION AND SOCIAL CHANGE. Edited by David Apter & Louis Goodman. New York: Praeger Publishers, 1976. Pp. 234. $16.50.

The unique position occupied by the multinational corporation in the present international framework has invited numerous studies. This collection of papers is drawn from those presented at a conference held at Yale University in 1974. The issues examined include: the impact of the multinational corporation on the metropolitan, as well as on the host nation; the differences in structure between United States and foreign multinationals; and the multinational as a logical stage in the evolution of capitalist enterprise.

Superior Orders in National and International Law. By L.C. Green. Leyden: A.W. Sijthoff, 1976. Pp. 374. $25.00.

This book grew out of a report the author, a professor at the University of Alberta, prepared for the Canadian Department of Justice on the subject of the justification of otherwise illegal action by the defense of superior orders. The study is, by the author's own admission, somewhat limited in scope as a result of the author's difficulty in obtaining original source material.
