NULLITY AND REVISION: THE REVIEW AND ENFORCEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL JUDGMENTS AND AWARDS. By W. Michael Reisman. New Haven: Yale University Press, 1971. Pp. vii, 900. $25.00.

The author's in-depth dissection of the myriad facets and forms of an international judgment make this work an invaluable research tool. The book analyzes the relationship between the procedural and substantive considerations involved in the granting of an international judgment or award and the process of enforcement.

THE ENDLESS CRISIS. Edited by François Duchêne. New York: Simon and Schuster, 1971. Pp. 310. $2.75.

In December, 1968, an international conference on cultural freedom was held at Princeton. This book, a record of that conference, is a collection of essays representing the viewpoints of a distinguished group of international authorities.

INTERNATIONAL LAW, NATIONAL TRIBUNALS AND THE RIGHTS OF ALIENS. By Grant Dawson and Ivan L. Head. Syracuse: Syracuse University Press, 1971. Pp. vii, 344. $11.75.

Professors Dawson and Head present a comparative study of the various legal and non-legal factors which limit the availability of effective remedies to injured aliens in foreign countries. Based on an intimate familiarity with a large number of countries, this work supplies specific recommendations for improving the availability and quality of local remedies.

THE LIMITED ELITE: POLITICS AND GOVERNMENT IN TWO INDIAN CITIES. By Donald B. Rosenthal. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1970. Pp. vii, 360. $12.75.

This study of Indian urban politics focuses on the roles and expectations of local government officials, the "limited elite" to which the title refers. By tracing the similarities and differences of two local political systems, the author makes a valuable contribution to both urban studies and comparative politics.

INTERNATIONAL LAW: THE SUBSTANCE, PROCESSES, AND INSTITUTIONS FOR WORLD PEACE WITH JUSTICE. By Charles S. Rhyne. Washington, D.C.: C.L.B. Publishers, Inc., 1971. Pp. vii, 656. $22.50.

A comprehensive study of the present status of international law, its substance, history, processes, procedures, agencies and institutions. This book provides extensive coverage of the subject with special emphasis upon the change and growth of the past twenty-five years.

HARMONIZATION OF EUROPEAN COMPANY LAWS: NATIONAL REFORM AND TRANSNATIONAL COORDINATION. By Eric Stein. New York: Bobbs-Merrill Co., Inc., 1971. Pp. vii, 558. $22.50.

Based on the thesis that the European nations are in the process of integration into a wider community of still undetermined pattern and dimension, the study deals with the assimilation of laws in different countries. The book is a useful addition to an area of law in which there has been little published.

A MODERN INTRODUCTION TO INTERNATIONAL LAW. By Michael Akehurst. New York: Atherton Press, 1970. Pp. vii, 367. $9.50.

All the topics that are normally covered in a college course in international law are dealt with in this text. Emphasis is placed on the relationship between international law and international politics.

CONTRACTUAL MARKETING SYSTEMS. By David Thompson. Lexington, Massachusetts: D.C. Heath and Co., 1971. Pp. vii, 329. $12.50.

The status, problems and prospects for contractual marketing systems are considered. The book offers a textbook-like approach to franchising and other variants of this form of marketing organization.

A FOOL FOR A CLIENT: MY STRUGGLE AGAINST THE POWER OF A PUBLIC PROSECUTOR. By Roy Cohn. New York: Hawthorn Books, Inc., 1971. Pp. vii, 197. $6.95.

Mr. Cohn's book is a personal account of his two dramatic trials, offering insights into the administration of justice in America today.

POLITICS IN THE TWENTIETH CENTURY. By Hans J. Morgenthau. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1971. Pp. vii, 430. $4.95.

This volume contains a selection of essays from a three-volume edition originally published in 1962. The work deals with the contemporary intellectual and political problems which confront the Western World in general, and the United States in particular. Because of their impact on foreign affairs, the essays are of continuing relevance.

THE SOVIET UNION AND ARMS CONTROL: A SUPERPOWER DILEMMA. By Roman Kolkovioz and Benjamin S. Lambeth. Baltimore: Johns Hopkins Press, 1970. Pp. ix, 212. $9.00.

Besides the analysis of Soviet attitudes on arms control, this book provides a penetrating insight into the business of power brokerage. The authors look beyond the SALT talks to the realities on which United States-Soviet negotiations must be based if arms limitation is to be achieved and if the present momentum of weapons technology is to be arrested.

ACROSS A DARKLING PLAIN: AN AMERICAN'S PASSAGE THROUGH THE MIDDLE EAST. By Marshall Frady. New York: Harper and Rowe, 1970. Pp. xi, 199. $6.50.

An account of the writer's personal travels from the south of Egypt to Jordan and Israel. The impact of American policies on the Middle East and the relationship of the nations to each other is emphasized.

THE SOVIET UNION AND THE LAW OF THE SEA. By William E. Butler. Baltimore: Johns Hopkins Press, 1971. Pp. xi, 245. $12.00.

Dr. Butler analyzes the origin and development of Soviet maritime power with a discerning eye. The book makes a significant contribution to the growing body of literature dealing with the conflict between sovereign rights and freedom of navigation with emphasis on the important role of the Soviet Union in pending negotiations concerning the law of the sea.

A NEW U.S. POLICY TOWARD CHINA. By A. Doak Barnett. Washington, D.C.: The Brookings Institution, 1971. Pp. xvii, 132. $5.95.

This study examines the fundamental issues in Sino-American relations with the discussion focused primarily on the policy changes that the author believes necessary to form the basis of a new and more effective American policy for the 1970's. Avoiding "easy solutions," the author proposes a course of action that is difficult but realistic.

THE CONDUCT OF SOVIET FOREIGN POLICY. By Erik P. Hoffmann and Frederic J. Fleron, Jr. Chicago: Aldine-Atherton, 1971. Pp. ix, 478. $12.50.

This volume presents the traditional and revisionist interpretations of both the internal and external factors that shape Soviet foreign policy and behavior. Topics include the impact of domestic politics, ideology, the origins of the cold war, competitive coexistence and developments in the third world.

SPEAR AND SCEPTER: ARMY, POLICE, AND POLITICS IN TROPICAL AFRICA. By Ernest W. Lefever. Washington, D.C.: The Brookings Institution, 1970. Pp. vii, 251. $6.50.

The author assesses the multiple effects of the military and police forces in the new African states through an examination of their role in Ghana, the Congo (Kinshasa), and Ethiopia from 1960 to 1970. He suggests that the pervasive influence of the instruments of coercion on the character and direction of state authority is not confined to illegal intervention in the political arena. The full range of relations between "spear" and "scepter" includes effects on the economy, domestic affairs, foreign policy and national identity.

FINGERPRINT TECHNIQUES. By Andre A. Moenssens. New York: Chilton Book Co., 1971. Pp. xi, 321. $7.95.

A detailed analysis of the multiplicity of uses of fingerprints in both lay and legal fields. Topics include the history of fingerprints, pattern interpretation, fingerprint classification and research in fingerprint applications.
